

THE WEEKLY MEOW with BANJO ★ ROBINSON

HELLO FRIEND!

Ahoy there!

I'm on my way to the USA and it feels as though I've been crossing the Atlantic for DAYS!

Maybe the reason I'm moving so slowly is because I'm travelling by sea turtle (she's called Penny, if you're wondering). Actually, Penny is pretty speedy, but we keep having to stop for me to jot things down so that's been causing a few delays.

Maybe it would be best if I stop writing down ideas for activities so we can concentrate on getting to America. You'll just have to make do with these ones below! Enjoy!

Stay fantastic,

Banjo x

FISHY jumble

The Atlantic makes up 20% of the world's oceans! That means there is LOADS of interesting marine life. Can you unscramble the names of some creatures you might find here? Answers below!

And here are some steps to follow if you'd like to draw something else you might find in the Atlantic- the rock crab!

Turtally LOST!

Can you help Penny find her way to America? Which route will get her there?

ANSWERS: whale, narwhal, walrus, dolphin, ray, starfish, catfish, seahorse

Where do tired fish go?

To the sea bed!

FIN-TASTIC NEW FRIENDS

Here are some yet-to-be-discovered fish. Can you fill in their info for them?

GET CREATIVE!

Marine life is INCREDIBLE.
If you were a sea creature,
what would you be and why?
I think I'd be a catfish! Why not draw or write all about your sea-self? You can give yourself a cool new name too!

WONDERFUL WELLBEING

I find the sea very relaxing (which is why I always snooze on boats!). Do you know what else makes me feel calm? Colouring in! Here's some ocean-themed mindful colouring for you to do when you'd like to wind down. Enjoy!

COLOUR ME IN!

HOORAY for HALLOWEEN! If you're expecting trick-or-treaters to come knocking this weekend, why not colour in and display this picture in your window?

Have a wonderful, spooky time! x
